Dear Friends,

Lett-uce consider a different perspective.

For 40 years, we’ve worked hard to feed our hungry neighbors, neighbors like Kelly who also work hard -- every single day. Like so many of our customers, her job pays below living wage, leaving her with both limited time and resources. Her full-time job also means it is difficult for her to get to a pantry when it is open, even when she really needs our help.

Her story, and countless others like it, gave us a fresh perspective. To co-create thriving communities, we have to continually ask ourselves: how can we be in the right place at the right time with the right food?

2019 was a year of evolving food perspectives, focusing our work, and looking with greater hope towards the future. We’re humbled by the work that we do each and every day and couldn’t do it without you. Your support helped improve the lives of so many people like Kelly, who want to take care of their families just like each of us.

40 years strong,

Matt Habash, CEO
change the look. change the conversation.

We’ve always pushed traditional food banking forward by constantly learning, growing, and innovating to better meet the needs of our customers.

For decades we’ve been impacted by thousands of unique hunger stories and we know that every story needs its own solution. We’ve learned that hunger goes beyond the dinner plate — a car breaking down, losing a job, combating racism, finding affordable housing, or earning a living wage.

Mid-Ohio Foodbank (anchor asset), Mid-Ohio Farm, Mid-Ohio Farmacy, Mid-Ohio Kitchen and Mid-Ohio Market work together to strengthen the Mid-Ohio Food Collective toward addressing the social determinants of health that place, and often keep, our neighbors in poverty.

The Mid-Ohio Food Collective is about rolling up our sleeves and meeting our neighbors where they are.

This new logo and brand was inspired by our customers and designed in-house.

Everything we do ties back to our goal of ending hunger.
MEETING THE MISSING MEAL GAP

Based on comprehensive research, we know that our hungry neighbors who live at or below 200% of the poverty line* are still missing 56 million meals a year in Franklin County and nearly 114 million meals across our 20-county footprint.

WE’RE WORKING SMART TO FIND FRESH SOLUTIONS.

THERE’S MORE WORK TO BE DONE.
Mid-Ohio Foodbank is the asset that holds our facility, 680 partner network, fleet of trucks, the logistics in moving food, & our associates.

Donna found herself in an unexpected situation: she was laid off from her job and shortly after, diagnosed with Type 2 Diabetes. On top of all this, she cares for her two adult children with autism who live at home.

At the pantry, she’s able to stretch her SNAP benefits so she can take home the fruits and vegetables she needs to help manage her diabetes.

“I remember coming here for the first time and being able to take home some fresh cabbage to cook. I know it might not seem like a lot to some people, but it is something my family was extremely thankful for.”

The Foodbank is the anchor asset serving as the backbone of all we do.

It’s the advanced logistics we deploy to distribute millions of pounds of fresh and shelf-stable food to our communities.

The Foodbank works with grocers, food companies, Ohio farmers, USDA, community partners, and donors to obtain, store, and distribute food to hundreds of partners including food pantries, soup kitchens, shelters, after-school programs, and senior housing sites across 20 counties in central and eastern Ohio.

Mid-Ohio Farm is an urban smart farm, built to help maximize crop yields to make fresh local produce more accessible to everyone.

We know that fresh produce is directly linked to health. The Mid-Ohio Farm is increasing access to fresh, local produce while encouraging civic engagement for low-income, food-insecure residents.

The Farm tests new growing systems, trains farmers on new techniques, and educates about the importance of urban agriculture. We’re working to change the fresh food landscape to have a larger impact on local communities.
Individuals in food-insecure families have a 49% greater risk of costly diseases like clinical diabetes\(^1\), 21% higher risk of clinical hypertension\(^2\), and 32% increased odds of being obese compared to food secure adults\(^3\).

We know that the right foods can help provide essential nutrients for the management and healing of chronic conditions.

We launched the Farmacy in 2015 to create an accessible and scalable model for distributing healthy food to improve overall health.

Mid-Ohio Farmacy bridges the gap between health care and access to nutritious food, helping patients improve and sustain their overall health and well-being.

One Farmacy patient is able to get all of her fresh produce from one of our network partners. She now has the room in her budget to afford the insulin that treats her diabetes.

20,000+ PATIENTS ARE NOW ENROLLED

Mid-Ohio Kitchen provides fresh, healthy food programs for kids, schools, seniors, and other community members.

In the Kitchens, we also focus on workforce development. After gaining customer service skills, learning how to work in a team setting, and basic kitchen skills, one of our ‘graduates’ is now on his way to a full-time position (with benefits) at Nationwide Children’s Hospital’s Food Service Department.

Healthy food is more than great ingredients and too often, there is not enough time or resources to prepare a hot meal. Yet good dependable meals mean more focus in the classroom, less stress at home, and stronger communities.

Millions of meals are being missed every year with stigma and accessibility as huge barriers to seeking needed help. We know that if our neighbors who are struggling visit an agency at least twice a month for fresh food, they will experience improved health outcomes, which in turn will help mitigate healthcare costs for all.

In 2019, we officially opened the first Mid-Ohio Markets at Columbus State Community College (CSCC) and HEART in Reynoldsburg.

"With my two kids along, I thought it was going to be a disaster, but the volunteers were so helpful. Everything was set up so that it was easy to walk through and choose what you would like. It’s my daughter’s new favorite ‘grocery store’.”
